Amanda is an associate in the firm's Estate Planning and Probate Section and is licensed to practice law in Texas. Amanda is passionate about serving her clients and developing a genuine connection with them through the process.

A significant portion of Amanda's practice is dedicated to creating, implementing and modifying estate plans that accomplish keys objectives regarding the disposition of one's estate and that address changes in one's family or financial situation. Additionally, Amanda counsels clients on capacity planning for themselves as well as their loved ones before the need arises. Amanda advises clients about Directive to Physicians (Living Wills), Statutory Durable Powers of Attorney and Medical Powers of Attorney. She has also advised clients about the option for a Supplemental Needs Trust for themselves or their incapacitated family members.

Prior to joining the firm, Amanda began her legal career as the Assistant In-House Counsel for a local land brokerage company and gained experience regarding oil and gas title issues. Amanda utilizes her oil and gas experience to help clients cure title through probates and properly transfer document the transfer of oil and gas assets.

Amanda is a native Houstonian and a Midland transplant as of 2013. Amanda and her husband, Nicholas, a native Midlander, have enjoyed making a home for themselves in Midland close to family.
